See the Palouse by Comfort Bicycle

The Latah Trail follows a gentle grade for 11-miles along the old rail bed between Moscow and Troy. The route meanders and rolls through the picturesque Palouse hills before winding north into a heavily forested section for the last mile or two of your journey. You'll find refreshment and a good meal at the bike-friendly Filling Station Restaurant, just off the trail in the charming town of Troy at the end of your ride. The Moscow-Troy trail was completed in October 2008. It is 10-feet wide, fully paved, and reserved for non-motorized use only.
